What are some of the specific issues impacting African CSOs currently that they haven’t dealt with before?

How are you doing as an organization and how are you responding to the COVID-19 pandemic?

What are some of the major capacity challenges facing #AfricanCSOs that you have not dealt with before?

How have you changed previously with the need to develop our own understanding of the epidemic and how are you involving your beneficiaries?

COVID-19 is affecting the social and economic dimensions of many communities, including those that are already vulnerable. The impacts of this crisis means that we may not have the luxury of time to implement changes that were not feasible. What are the major barriers to implementing changes that could keep people calm?

Outcomes & Recommendations

The necessity of coordination, especially in an emergency, cannot be overemphasized. CSOs have an important role to play, especially at the community level where they can make “working from home” difficult. For example, those working in the social and economic sectors. The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

Other ideas shared include: CSOs can also help fill this gap. One trend we want to avoid is CSOs being seen as leaders at the frontline. The nature of the work, e.g. service delivery, can make “working from home” impractical.

The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

How are governments coordinating with African CSOs, and how are you involved?

During and after COVID-19, we hope to see a mobilization of the African philanthropic and civil society sectors where the voices of CSOs are heard. CSOs can directly engage with governments to share experiences and best practices.

How can African CSOs mobilize and leverage funds from within the continent itself? This chat is a conversation on how to do so.

Here are influential #AfricanCSOs to tackle this pandemic?

What are some of the major capacity challenges facing #AfricanCSOs currently that they haven’t dealt with before?

Outcomes & Recommendations

The necessity of coordination, especially in an emergency, cannot be overemphasized. CSOs have an important role to play, especially at the community level where they can make “working from home” difficult. For example, those working in the social and economic sectors. The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

Other ideas shared include: CSOs can also help fill this gap. One trend we want to avoid is CSOs being seen as leaders at the frontline. The nature of the work, e.g. service delivery, can make “working from home” impractical.

The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

How are governments coordinating with African CSOs, and how are you involved?

During and after COVID-19, we hope to see a mobilization of the African philanthropic and civil society sectors where the voices of CSOs are heard. CSOs can directly engage with governments to share experiences and best practices.

How can African CSOs mobilize and leverage funds from within the continent itself? This chat is a conversation on how to do so.

Here are influential #AfricanCSOs to tackle this pandemic?

What are some of the major capacity challenges facing #AfricanCSOs currently that they haven’t dealt with before?

Outcomes & Recommendations

The necessity of coordination, especially in an emergency, cannot be overemphasized. CSOs have an important role to play, especially at the community level where they can make “working from home” difficult. For example, those working in the social and economic sectors. The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

Other ideas shared include: CSOs can also help fill this gap. One trend we want to avoid is CSOs being seen as leaders at the frontline. The nature of the work, e.g. service delivery, can make “working from home” impractical.

The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

How are governments coordinating with African CSOs, and how are you involved?

During and after COVID-19, we hope to see a mobilization of the African philanthropic and civil society sectors where the voices of CSOs are heard. CSOs can directly engage with governments to share experiences and best practices.

How can African CSOs mobilize and leverage funds from within the continent itself? This chat is a conversation on how to do so.

Here are influential #AfricanCSOs to tackle this pandemic?

What are some of the major capacity challenges facing #AfricanCSOs currently that they haven’t dealt with before?

Outcomes & Recommendations

The necessity of coordination, especially in an emergency, cannot be overemphasized. CSOs have an important role to play, especially at the community level where they can make “working from home” difficult. For example, those working in the social and economic sectors. The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

Other ideas shared include: CSOs can also help fill this gap. One trend we want to avoid is CSOs being seen as leaders at the frontline. The nature of the work, e.g. service delivery, can make “working from home” impractical.

The blog post here describes this: https://www.theengineroom.org/building-trust-while-working-remotely/

How are governments coordinating with African CSOs, and how are you involved?

During and after COVID-19, we hope to see a mobilization of the African philanthropic and civil society sectors where the voices of CSOs are heard. CSOs can directly engage with governments to share experiences and best practices.

How can African CSOs mobilize and leverage funds from within the continent itself? This chat is a conversation on how to do so.

Here are influential #AfricanCSOs to tackle this pandemic?

What are some of the major capacity challenges facing #AfricanCSOs currently that they haven’t dealt with before?